ROCKWOOD WAS FETTERED

Sentenced to Year in Jail, the Condition of His Health Keeping Him from State Prison—Court Adjourned Until May 24.

The jury in the criminal superior court, which held a Saturday session lasting all day until after 5 o'clock, brought in a verdict of guilty in the case of William E. Rockwood, who was charged with the theft of $145.
Judge Wheeler sentenced him to one year in jail, although he said he could have sentenced him to five years in state prison, but was lenient because of the condition of his health.

The first witness, Saturday morning was William F. Hill, who testified to knowing Rockwood, who, he said, sold himself to him. He claimed that he loaned money to Rockwood and received a money order for $24.54 sent by Rockwood from Worcester, although the letter was dated Putnam.
It paid for $35 loaned Rockwood and an insurance policy.

In regard to the bank account of Mr.
Pulasky and the deposit slips, Cashier C. Leach of the First National bank testified. This completed the statement of the witnesses.

Testimony for Defendant.

The first witness for the defendant was Charles E. Lane, who testified to meeting Rockwood on the street and going with him to the jail where they saw Mr. Lane's farm, which Rockwood thought he might sell.

Dr. Nathan G. Gray testified to paying Rockwood $10 for pictures he bought of him, while Arthur Durr testified he met Rockwood near Pulasky's store April 12 and saw him take pictures. They had some beer. P. E.
Watson testified for Rockwood, who had talked about taking pictures and the wife of the accused, Mary Rockwood, told of working in the Shetucket mill and giving her earnings to her husband. They have two small children.
Jennie Humes, her daughter by a previous marriage, testified to her father residing in Providence, which was then called Bagville.

Town Clerk C. S. Holbrook testified that he had given a receipt for a sum which Attorney Thresher drew up, and Hymen Fickelstein, an employee of Pulasky's, testified to what he knew about the case. Deputy Judge Barnes presided over the city court when the case was heard there, and he told that Rockwood was given a chance to plain how he came by the money.

The accused testified that he was in Edward C. Ely.

ON A BALLOON TRIP.
Thought They Might Go to Canada, But Came South Instead, Landing at Sharon, Ct.

Contrary winds and a heavy passenger load kept the balloon from making its intended trip to Canada. The balloon, which was owned by the late John Maples, was sold by his widow, Mrs. Nancy Maples, to First Selectman Albert W. Lillibridge. It is a well known produce farm and for a number of years has been occupied by Mr. Beetham. Since he left, however, tramps have made it a rendezvous and therefore the property has been sold.

Pilot William Van Sleet of Pittsfield, who went up with the party had promised to take them on a double century trip, and as there was a strong south wind they decided to go south. They might go to Canada and try for the trophies offered to the balloon which had been captured by the army.

In order to make the double century flight a dozen bags of sand weighing 200 pounds were needed. The meanwhile the balloon was being inflated and the passengers' weight of 750 pounds.
